The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970);and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1 to 33 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 to 35 of copending Application No. 10/060,853. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the sole difference between the two applications is the mixing means. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to allow mixing in only one part of the device in order to prevent any unwanted crystallization or reaction, which could plug the lumens.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a), which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections, set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 to 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Delucas PCT 00/60345 in view of Weigl et al (6,409,832).

The Delucas reference teaches a process and device for crystallization of high molecular weight proteins and genes. The device consists of a substrate where channels have been created and are in the mircosize range. There is plurality of different places to crystallize or react the proteins. The solutions are first fed to the channels. The solutions are then flowed together into a reaction or crystallization zone. There the proteins can be crystallized or reacted in set conditions and the results are observed, note, entire reference and particular figures. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the mixing of the solutions. However, the Weigl et al reference teaches a microcrystallization method and device. There are channels (lumens) in a substrate in the order to micron size. The solutions, which can be proteins, are flowed into separate channels. When the channels meet the flow is such that the solutions mix by diffusion only, note, and figure 1. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Delucas reference by the teachings of the Weigl et al reference to use a diffusion mix in order to not create a disturbance in the solutions which can ruin the growth of the crystals.
